} } I get this error. Does anyone know the reason? A: The first time you call outputStream.flush(), you are telling the DataOutputStream to flush the DataOutputStream's internal buffer. This calls the close() method on the underlying OutputStream. The next time you call outputStream.flush(), you are telling the DataOutputStream to flush the current contents of the file. In other words, it is telling the underlying OutputStream to call close() on the underlying OutputStream. The net effect of the first call is to make the underlying OutputStream return to its
