The objective of this study was to investigate the effects of chitosan and its derivatives on the germination of soybean (Glycine max) seeds, using chitosan-N-acetylcysteine (CNAC) and oxidized chitosan (OCH), compared with water and other treatments. The germination behavior of seeds was observed by the micromorphology of cotyledon cells, and the dynamics of seed germination, at which the phenylephrine-induced hyponopicity was used as an index, and the effect of these treatments on seed germination was also investigated. The results showed that the germination percentage of seeds increased with the increasing contents of chitosan
